JOURNALISM.

The Philadelphia Bulletin has some excellent remarks on American journalism, from which we make the following extract:

"The greatest of all nuisances to a respectable editor, are those small minded gentry who believe that the mission of a journal is not to disseminate news, and to aid buyers and sellers by advertisements, but to be perpetually 'pitching in' to this or that subject; more generally into the petty and trivial. Such characters are generally very loud and talkative specimens of the genus irritabilis, prone to hint that they could carry on a journal with all its difficult details much better than anybody else in the country; that they would 'stir up things,' and that their firm belief is, that all a paper needs is 'pepper' to make it excellent. We can imagine, as we write, that we even now hear the familiar accents: 'Now I just want you to write an article and give so and so fits'—for men of this description are generally gifted with a degree of assurance which respects no duty or dignity, and suffers the possessor to believe that his miserable fancies will actually receive consideration. And yet we can say with truth that we never met with one of these advocates of indiscriminate 'pepper' and abuse, who would not write with agony at the faintest allusion to himself in type which fell short of flattery, or who was not in fact a coward."

Men who put faith in abuse as a necessary element in journalism, who take no interest in articles which are not in some way personal, and who relish no "fun" unless it is, are invariably vulgar and selfish, just in proportion to the degrees in which they taste prevail with them. It is melancholy, however, to see the number of them in every community, and the degree to which they often succeed in inspiring writers for the press with their own spirit."

The Bulletin is right, so far as its remarks go—but it might have gone a great deal farther, with entire safety. It should have laid down the general rule that a newspaper is usually the property of the editor, subject altogether to his control, and that suggestions in regard to "pitching in" are no more allowable than suggestions in regard to anything else coming within the range of journalism. Friendly advice, offered in a spirit of kindness to an editor, is never unacceptable. But merely captious objections to something that has appeared, or impertinent suggestions as to what should appear, are more calculated perhaps to irritate and annoy the journalist, than anything else he has to encounter in his career.

The rule in such things should be that which is dictated by common sense. If a man does not like his paper's remedy does not consist in complaints, but in stoppages. If the paper is not acceptable to him, let him withdraw his name from the list of subscribers. This is a plain and simple remedy, which would be far more acceptable to the journalist than constant suggestions as to what should be done, and what should not be. An editor owes to the instruction and amusement of a vast circle of readers, of all pursuits and professions. The presumption ought to be allowed, that he understands his business better than an outsider. At any rate, inasmuch as he alone is to be the sufferer if he does not, he is not to be allowed to appear an unreasonable one in the Kansas Bill, as Mr. Douglass said in the Kansas Bill, to regulate his affairs "in his own way, subject only to the requirements of morality and good taste."

What the Bulletin says about the desire of a certain class of readers that an editor should always be "pitching in" to somebody, will not be considered by any journalist as at all extravagant or beyond the truth. There is a class of readers who nothing delights more than personal personalities in the press, and a constant infusion of "spice" and "pepper" into editorial comment. A fight or two occasionally would produce prodigious—and it is a remarkable fact, that these new readers consider themselves badly wounded—and are always prepared to boast with extraordinary severity, the personal prowess of the combatants—never hesitating to impute gross cowardice to them unless they either kill or are killed. Yet, in no case out of ten, these are the very men whom no sort of provocation could force to the redress of a wrong—who would skulk in gloriously at the first demonstration of hostility towards themselves—and who, yet the most rigid in their criticisms of the conduct of those who recognize a man's manhood. They will read the personal correspondence in a newspaper with most malicious acumen, and will declaim on the "cowardice" of that which is in fact, the highest exhibition of bravery—the withdrawal of an offensive expression which subsequent events have shown to be unfounded. Such men must acknowledge their own responsibility, in every manner known, before their comments upon the conduct of others can be treated with any other feeling than that of contempt.—Lynchburg Vir.

PLAN OF THE LOTTERY.
The Numbers from 1 to 50,000, corresponding with those Numbers on the Tickets printed on separate slips of paper, are encircled with small tin tubes, and placed in one wheel.

The first 45 Prizes, similarly printed and encircled, are placed in another wheel, and a number is drawn from the wheel of Numbers, and at the same time a Prize is drawn from the other wheel. The Number and Prize drawn out are opened and exhibited to the audience, and registered by the Commissioners. The Prize being placed against the number drawn. This operation is repeated until all the Prizes are drawn out.

APPROXIMATION PRIZES.—The two preceding and the last succeeding Numbers to those drawn in the first 7 Prizes, will be entitled to the 28 Approximation Prizes.

For example, if Ticket No. 11250 draws the $70,000 Prize, those Tickets numbered 11248, 11249, 11251, 11252, will each be entitled to $100. The 28 Approximation Prizes will be determined by the last figure of the Number that draws the $70,000 prize. For example, if the Number drawing the $70,000 Prize ends with No. 1, then all the Tickets where the number ends in 1 will be entitled to $20. If the Number ends with No. 2, then all the Tickets where the Number ends in 2 will be entitled to $20, and so on to the 28.

MARYLAND STATE LOTTERIES—R. FRANCE & CO., Managers.—CAUTION NOTICE: Persons living at a distance should be extremely cautious of whom they order Lottery Tickets or Certificates of Packages of Tickets. The country is flooded with bogus and swindling Lotteries. Every inducement is held out to get persons to invest money in them—Capital Prizes of from $20,000 to $40,000 head their schemes—with tickets at one dollar, $100,000 Capital Prize offered, tickets $5, $10, $20, in every instance, are frauds; and if money is sent to them for tickets, it is so much thrown away without the shadow of a chance of getting a prize. Beware of all Lotteries where the Capital Prize is unusually large in comparison to the price of tickets. In every instance where large prizes are offered for a small cost of tickets, put it down as a certain fraud.

The Kentucky State Lottery, for the benefit of the Ohio College, under our management, is the only Lottery in the United States which is legally decided by the Maryland Drawings, all other Lotteries which purport to be decided by the Maryland Drawings, are frauds.

THE MARYLAND STATE LOTTERIES. Purchase in the Maryland State Lotteries, then you are sure of being right. And in ordering in the Maryland State Lotteries, you are sure of fair honest drawings.

One thing look to, and that is, if you order from any licensed vender in Baltimore, do not receive any but Managers' Tickets and Managers' Printed Certificates of Packages. The Managers' Certificates have the numbers printed, and have the lithographed signature of R. France & Co.

No one has a right to send his individual certificates, and if he does he is sure there is a fraud at the bottom of it. R. FRANCE & CO., at the bottom of the City.
